An expectant mother leaving an abusive relationship needed to move out of a relative's home. Her community health worker signed her up for WIC and SNAP, connected her to other resources, and the team approved funds to help her move into her own apartment.

Jefferson School District saw that some students did not have enough to eat. The Jefferson SI Team supported a weekend backpack program so students would not go hungry, and also funded a weekend summer program.

A parent and child had to move suddenly after a domestic violence incident, and a long-term health condition kept the parent from working, so they fell behind on rent. With support from the school, the Jefferson SI Team approved funds, combined with other funding, to help keep this family in their home.

A family needed help covering the remaining cost of car repairs after paying part themselves. With funds approved by the team, the family stayed employed, which helped them keep their home and care for one another.
